A Washington despatch of the 13th February says:-A decision was rendered by the Supreme Court to day in the case of the United States against the British steamer Strathairly. This is a Chinese immigration case from California, form us that the Ocean Steamship Company's in the nature of a libel against the British steamer to recover about $25,000 in penalties for alloged violation of certain United States statutes which prescribe the number of Chinese immigrants that shall be carried by steamers of cortain sizes, the accommodations that such iminigrants shall have on board the vessel, and the delivery of a true list of such passongers to the Collector of Customs in San Francisco. The defendant in the court below took exceptions to the libel on the ground that the facts set forth in it were not sufficient to create a lien on the vessel under any law in the United States. The Court sustained the exceptions and dismissed the bill. This Court, however, in an opinion by Justice Matthews, holds that the libel does set forth sufficient cause of Botion and entitles the United States, upon proof of facts, to recover under the first and second counts, but that it must be dismissed as to the third. The decree of the Circuit Court is therefore reversed and
